Ms. David-Green is a seasoned executive with considerable experience leading communications, marketing and investor relations functions, with particular expertise in the energy industry. At Expro, she is responsible for leading the planning and execution of the Company's communication and engagement with key stakeholders, including analysts, investors and employees, as well as its sustainability initiatives and environmental, social and governance (ESG) reporting. She reports to Mike Jardon, Chief Executive Officer of Expro.

"Karen brings deep and highly relevant experience to Expro - her prior success overseeing investor relations, communications and sustainability programs will be invaluable as we enter Expro's next chapter as a public company through our combination with Frank's International," said Mr. Jardon. "Karen is uniquely qualified to help us build a best-in-class program to deepen our engagement with key stakeholders and articulate our clear vision for the future of our company and the role we play in helping our customers deliver on a lower carbon future."

"Expro is a global industry leader at the forefront of the energy transition, and I am honored to join the company at this critical point in its history," said Ms. David-Green. "I look forward to continuing to work with the management team to ensure Expro demonstrates leadership, accountability and transparency as it drives growth and value creation for the benefit of customers, shareholders and other stakeholders."

About Karen David-Green

Ms. David-Green joins Expro after spending ten years in communications, marketing and investor relations leadership positions with Weatherford International plc, most recently as Senior Vice President, Stakeholder Engagement & Chief Marketing Officer. In that role she led the company's global marketing, communications and investor relations strategy and established Weatherford's Sustainability Leadership Council and Working Group, which guided the company's ESG and sustainability agenda. She previously served as Vice President, Corporate Marketing and Investor Relations, as well as Vice President, Communications and Investor Relations. Prior to joining Weatherford in 2010, she spent 15 years on Wall Street including serving as Executive Director of U.S. Equity Research, Oil Services & Equipment at Oppenheimer & Co., Inc.
